

Eskişehir Okulu is happy to announce the launch of the Ottoman-Turkish course for beginner level students. The course, taking place between September 15 and November 3, 2021 (every Wednesday, 19:30-21:45 UTC/GMT +3) is designed for students who would like to learn Ottoman-Turkish and gain access to the world of Ottoman texts written in the early 20th century.

The courses to be given within the scope of Ottoman-Turkish Lessons will be online and will consist of three basic parts: teaching the alphabet, grammar, and reading and analyzing various texts from the beginning of the 20th century. Since the courses will be held in Turkish, the participants must have advanced knowledge of modern Turkish.

Application deadline: September 10, 2021

Eskişehir Okulu

Eskişehir Okulu was founded in June 2017 by academics who were dismissed from their positions at universities for being the signatories of the Academics for Peace statement titled “We Will Not Be a Party to This Crime”, and those who supported this solidarity intellectually, heartily and de facto. Eskişehir Okulu, which defends free thought and freedom of expression, rejects all kinds of discrimination related to sexual, class, spatial, cultural, religious and age. Eskişehir Okulu tries to pave the way for the production and sharing of collective, oppositional and critical knowledge with an egalitarian, anti-racist, non-homophobic language; It aims to make scientific, social and artistic productions in order to better understand and analyze the universe, life, world and people. All lectures, seminars, workshops and excursions at Eskişehir Okulu are open not only to university students but also to all segments of the society.
